

Social justice is at the core of what drives me. My passion lies in working with vulnerable populations. At LAHP, I have the ability to work with likeminded individuals to find ways to ease life's burdens for members of our own community who suffer unspeakable challenges and unbearable circumstances.

At LAHP, I am joining an organization with a 22-year history of supporting Long Islanders in need. The foundation of anonymity and dignity upon which LAHP is built resonates strongly for me. I look forward to finding a strategic path by which we can honor the core values and rich history of the organization while at the same time implement change that will enhance our impact and ability to expand our support to reach more deeply and broadly.

I am grateful to my husband, family and circumstances that allow me to follow my heart and find fulfillment in work that is mission driven and meaningful. When I am not working, you can find me spending quality time at home with our dogs or soaking up sunshine at one of my favorite beaches.
